Manager's Commentary

The investment landscape is changing rapidly as the Covid-19 storm has largely passed over us. As with most storms there is turbulence and squalls which follow before things settle into a new rhythm. Inflation remains a risk, with CPI figures an excess of 5% and 5 Yr breakeven inflation pinned to roughly 3%, we expect our "higher for longer" view playing out. We are cognizant of the demand and supply dynamics exacerbating the current price situation and we expect demand/supply dynamic to find an equilibrium as we move into 2022. We continue to keep a close eye on wage rates, which have been trending higher and are the key to whether inflation becomes more engrained longer term. For now, it looks like the headline figures after peaking in early 2022 should begin to subside during the second quarter as some of the year-on-year comparison effects drop out of the data.

On the monetary policy front, we expect monetary tightening to be the theme of 2022. The Fed has been pointing in that direction. In the UK the pressures are certainly rising for the Bank of England to follow suit. In Europe the ECB have announced an end to its emergency liquidity programme called PEPP during the second quarter 2022. Likewise in the United States the Federal Reserve is now widely expected to begin tapering-back soon. The US economy continued to offer positive surprises during the month. Whilst inflation remains a feature, the 5-year breakeven figure of 2.92%* is lower than others. Unemployment remains sticky at 4.8%,* a higher level than when the pandemic hit. Key market indices including the Dow, S&P500 and Nasdaq have posted new all-time highs. The ongoing stimulus of corporate buybacks of issued stock remains a trend in US which helps to keep prices higher. In Congress President Biden seeks permission for the debt ceiling to be raised. This is an emotive political debate between Republicans and Democrats which as a rule is allowed to push a decision to the last moment.

In the world's second largest economy, China showed signs of further weakness in October as power shortages and surging commodity prices weighed on manufacturing, while strict Covid controls put a brake on spending. A slowing economy witnessing some strong inflationary pressure stimulates talk of "stagflation". The Chinese authorities have sought to control levels of "hedonistic wealth" particularly in the technology sector by enforcing restrictions and access to online gaming and other fast growth sectors which are shaping attitudes and behaviours of the populous. We are monitoring the situation closely.

Looking out from here, valuations point to more room for the European equity markets (including UK, which is one of the cheapest relatively) to move ahead over the next 12-24 months. Expect US equities, likely to be driven mainly by earnings growth to continue expansion. Pointers are still positive with 4th quarter 2021 earnings growth currently indicated by Factset to be around 20% year-on-year, * but clearly with little room for disappointment.
